Biography

Paul S. Dayhoff grew up in South Africa, born to missionary parents Fannie and Irvine E. Dayhoff. He received his B.A. from the University of Witwatersrand, Johannesburg and a B.D. from Asbury Theological Seminary, Kentucky. He earned his D.Th. from University of South Africa. After his studies in the U.S. he returned as a missionary of the Nazarene Church to South Africa. He taught and held Administrative posts in Nazarene schools and Theological Colleges in South Africa and Swaziland. He was a founding faculty member of the Nazarene Theological College, South Africa. After retirement he returned to the U.S. He published three books documenting the life stories of the African Nazarenes, local men and women who were involved in the mission and ministry of the Nazarene Church in Africa. The Collection consists of original source material related to his three books (Living Stones in Africa: Pioneers of the Church of the Nazarene; Africa Nazarene Mosaic; Standing Stones of Africa); Africa Church of the Nazarene Annual Assembly reports; individual Church papers, and periodicals published by the Nazarene Church. It includes hundreds of photographs of the African Nazarenes whose biographical sketches fill the books. The CD's carry pictures of the fauna and flora of Africa, Nazarene ministry in Africa and family history of the Dayhoffs. The Audio Cassettes contain interviews conducted for the books. Books written by Irvine E. Dayhoff are included in the collection.

Irvine Dayhoff (1894-1982) was born in Dayton, Kansas. In 1916 he married Fannie Longnecker (1890-1989). Irvine and Fannie Dayhoff went to South Africa in 1919 as missionaries sponsored by the Hephzibah Faith Missionary Association. In 1939 after a furlough of two years they went back as independent missionaries. In 1941 they affiliated themselves with the International Holiness Mission which merged with the Church of the Nazarene in 1952. In 1942 they founded the Lorraine Mission. The Thriving North Eastern District of the Church of the Nazarene in South Africa is the direct result of their work along with other pioneers. They retired at University Park Iowa in 1960.

Scope and Contents

The Paul Dayhoff (1925-) Collection documents Church of the Nazarene missions in southern Africa. It contains data on 475 persons, mostly African nationals, who have been crucial to the development of the church in Africa. A version of this information was published in the internet Dictionary of African Biography (www.dacb.org). Other information was also published in Living Stones in Africa (3 volumes, 1996-2006) and in Africa Nazarene Mosaic: Inspiring Accounts of Living Faith (2001).

The son of Nazarene missionaries in Africa, Dayhoff studied at the University of Witwatersrand (B.A. 1948), Asbury Theological Seminary (B.D. 1951), and the University of South Africa (D.Th. 1980). His D.Th. dissertation was entitled: "The Message of Holiness of the Church of the Nazarene among the Northern Sotho People." In addition to the African prosopography material, the collection documents the life and ministry of the of Paul Stanley and Margaret Lillian Stark Dayhoff, including published materials, unpublished materials and labeled photographs, in both digital and paper formats. The collection also contains items published by his father Irwin E. Dayhoff.
