Writing a story about women’s history at Fuller is a difficult task. It is difficult because much of it is not written down but is kept alive by oral tradition. Finding the people who know parts of the story can be a daunting task but often personally rewarding. The stories each woman shares are spoken with vibrant emotion. This composite is not complete but it is inspiring.

Fuller Theological Seminary opened its doors in 1947. In 1948, Helen Clark McGregor (sister of Cathy Clark Kroeger) came to Fuller as the first woman student. At that time Fuller did not support women in an ordained capacity. In order to study at Fuller, McGregor had to sign a paper that she was not planning to be ordained. She was admitted into a special degree program created just for her called a “Master of Sacred Theology” which was a Bachelor of Divinity without the homiletics requirement. When she received her diploma in 1952, however, the paper read “Master of Secret Theology.” (A humorous but telling mistake.)

Yet, there was a spirit consistent within Fuller to open up new frontiers. In 1952, Dr. Rebecca Price came to Fuller as the first female faculty member. She was the director and professor of Christian Education.

For most of the first two decades of Fuller’s history, women trickled through the maze of theological education, but the later sixties saw new developments. In 1966, Lucille Lynch Carr became the first woman to graduate with a M.A. in Missions. Another historic moment came in 1969 when Patricia Harrison became the first woman to graduate with a Bachelor of Divinity degree. Today she is listed in the Alumniae Directory as having an Masters of Divinity.

The number of women students began to grow in the seventies. By the mid-seventies, women comprised 18% of the student body at Fuller. In 1974, Edie Munger became the first woman to graduate with a Ph.D. in Psychology.

1975 was a significant year for Fuller. Cinda Gorman became the first woman to be ordained as a senior pastor of a church upon her graduation from Fuller. Roberta Hestenes came as Instructor in Communications and she initiated new courses focusing on women’s issues. She also edited a Theology News and Notes edition entitled “Women in Transition.” Also, Dr. Paul Jewett’s radical book Man as Male and Female published, thus forcing the issue of how Fuller would stand as an institution on the ordination of women.

Dr. Rebecca Price, Fuller’s first female faculty member

It became more clear in the seventies that women students seeking to understand the call from God in their own lives had special needs while pursuing their education at Fuller. Perhaps fueled by the courage of activism in the larger context of women’s issues in the country, in 1976, six women staged a sit-in in Provost Glenn Barker’s office. Their request: an Office of Women’s Concerns here at Fuller to help in the educational process. Six months later the first director was hired, Libbie Patterson. Dr. Patterson provided leadership for the women at Fuller for seven years and organized the first Women’s Concerns Committee as a safe meeting place for women to express their joys and frustrations with theological education.

The late 1970s saw more milestones for women. Gloryanna Hees became the first woman to graduate with a Doctor of Ministry degree and Rose Edgar became the first African-American woman to graduate with a Ph.D. in Psychology. Also Fuller co-sponsored the Evangelical Women’s Concerns meeting entitled “Women and the Ministries of (continued on 3rd page)
In the spirit of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., I believe God is raising up leaders in this generation to fulfill the “dream” deferred. It was necessary that King’s dream die for a season in order to be resurrected with new life and new meaning. This resurrected dream will find its significance in the unity of God’s people as opposed to the unity and peace of an idealistic world. This dream will be realized by a people whose rights are legislated by the Kingdom of God and whose rights transcend civil injustices.

The dream espoused by Dr. King can never be attained through the natural but only the spiritual. His message captured the ears of many yet the hearts of few. No moral message or deed can bring about lasting changes in the heart of humankind without the transforming power of God. Dr. King paved the way for a new generation of leaders and a new “resurrected” dream, that can only be realized through a relationship with Jesus Christ.

God raised up Dr. King as a type of Moses, to deliver an oppressed people from an unjust system; a system that refused to acknowledge all humanity as being created equal. A system designed to repress and degrade the black race; to keep them from visibly advancing as an integral and viable part of mainstream society. A system that strives to preserve slavery in less obvious forms.

I believe that in the spirit of Moses, these up and coming leaders will move under the power of God and bring deliverance to a weary people who have been oppressed by the devil. These people will be set free from years of spiritual bondage that plagued their lives. The yoke of the enemy will be destroyed and strongholds torn down and demolished. The “King Moses” generation will not fear its opposition but will fight and stand firm until the dream is realized.

If the devil can keep people in bondage and divided by racism, hatred, envy, unforgiveness, etc., then humankind will never unite. Without freedom there can be no peace; without Christ.” This represented a major institutional commitment to women and many women came to Fuller as a result. Women like Marie Wiebe, who went on to be the first woman senior pastor in the Evangelical Covenant denomination, and Liz Nordquist, who is a pastor in the Presbyterian church. Also, Joani Cathey became the first woman to receive the Preaching Award in 1978.

The 1980s continued to be fruitful. Fuller took its official stand in support of women by making one of its distinctive the support of women in ministry. Dolores Easty became the first Hispanic woman to graduate from Fuller and be ordained in 1980. In 1982, the First Women’s Lectureship was held with the speaker being Kathleen Storie, a sociologist at the University of Saskatoon, and in 1983, Hendrika VandeKemp became the first woman faculty member to achieve tenure.

Fran Hiebert became the Director of Women’s Concerns in 1983. She developed the handbook on non-discriminatory language, and by 1984, the faculty adopted the policy and began requiring students to use inclusive language in their papers. Some people may have felt that this was an exercise in political correctness for Fuller but to the women students it was a recognition that language can be a tool of repression but also a powerful tool for liberation.

The mid-eighties had two important moments. In 1985, Marianne Meyers Thompson became the first full-time woman faculty member in the area of Biblical Studies, and in 1987, Brenda Salter McNeil was the first African American woman to receive the preaching award.

Dr. Karen Torjesen became the Director of Women’s Concerns in 1985. She drew up a proposal for a Women’s Studies program with an emphasis in theological research and presented this to the faculty. The next couple of years were difficult times. Dr. Torjesen took a one year sabbatical to gain more study in the area of Evangelical women and to refine her proposal. During the interim year, Dawn Waring, the first woman to graduate with a Ph.D. from the School of Theology, became the director. Dr. Torjesen returned as director in 1986 but due to conflicts regarding her proposal, and an article she had written on the issue of homosexuality, her “evangelical-ness” was questioned. After much turmoil, she accepted a position at Claremont.

Dr. Torjesen was highly involved with the women at Fuller, supporting their educational and ministerial pursuits. Her leaving fractured the Women’s Concerns Committee and the anger and pain from those years discouraged many women in their journeys at Fuller. Some women left and went to other institutions. Other women stayed but distanced themselves from the institution feeling betrayed and silenced.

Dr. Patterson came back as Director for one year and attempted to pick up the pieces after a lot of mistrust toward the institution. The Committee started again but it was clear that the pain and anger was a legacy that haunted it members.

In 1989, after the Office set vacant for a year, the first woman to take the position of director while holding a Master’s of Divinity degree from Fuller was Robin Nygaard. She has worked to bring reconciliation to the committee and healing to many of the women students on campus. She has been responsible for developing the sexual harassment policy for Fuller and bringing the first African-American Systematic Theologian to the Women’s Lectureship. Ms. Nygaard has also been an inspiration to many women by navigating the ordination process of the Presbyterian Church(USA); a process which culminated in a call to serve at La Crescènta Presbyterian Church.

The position of the Director of Women Concern’s in now open. It is clear that women students benefit from such an office that represents Fuller’s commitment to women in ministry and professional endeavors. Women students now comprise 33% of the student body. Presently, the Women’s Concerns Committee consists of 12 women. The Committee seeks to provide a safe place for women to share their journeys and it sponsors events that keeps alive the dialogue of women’s experience here on campus. It also brings attention to the need for women faculty members and administrators as role models for its female students.

Finally, as Fuller restructures itself, it is important and imperative that its commitment to women is not lost or diminished. As co-chair, I have had numerous conversations with our women students who came to Fuller because it affirms women and deliberately supports women by having an office responsible for their needs and concerns. Women in theological education is still a new frontier and Fuller’s commitment to the journey is both encouraging and prophetic.

Wm. B. Eerdmans and the FTS Bookstore cordially invite you to a reception celebrating the publication of "Mark: A Commentary on His Apology for the Cross" by Robert H. Gundry, Thursday, April 22, 5:30 - 7:30pm, at the Doubletree Hotel (Ballroom), 191 North Los Robles. Refreshments will be served.

SWM PROSPECTIVE STUDENT DAY
MAY 1
Do you have friends that would be interested in a degree from our school of World Mission (or even just interested in taking a few classes)? If you do know someone who would like to visit campus and learn more about what Fuller has to offer, please invite them to the School of World Mission Prospective Student Day that we will be hosting on Saturday, May 1. For more information (and we really do want your friends to come!), contact the Admissions Office at 584-5400.

A DATE TO REMEMBER!
JUNE 10
Attention SOT students (especially this year graduates) the SOT Banquet this year has been fixed! It will be held at the University Club on Thursday June 10 at 6:30 p.m. This is always a special event, but this year even more so as President Hubbard and the Trustees will be joining us. It is a once in a lifetime opportunity, so put the date down! Graduating students go free, otherwise tickets will be $15. Invitations and more information will be forthcoming.

FREE JOB SEARCH ASSISTANCE FOR MINORITIES
Paoli Publishing, the publishers of Career Opportunities for Minority College Graduates, would like to offer minority students a very special free service to assist them with their career search. They will accept one-page resumes from seniors, graduate students, and graduates in the following fields: Accounting, Teaching (education), Communications, Nursing/Health Care, Public Administration (all), and Sales. All you have to do is send them a one-page typewritten resume according to their guidelines, and they will present it to employers nationwide. For further information and guidelines, please contact the Office of Career Services at 584-5576. DEADLINE: May 3, 1993.

OOPS!
In last week's SEMI, we failed to edit the Chapel column adequately and a note that was intended to be an internal reminder was accidently left in the final. As a result, there was some misunderstanding in the identification of a person as "What's his name." The SEMI staff did not intend to make fun of this person in any way, and regret any confusion or disrespect the mistake may have incurred.

SOT FACULTY SEARCH SETS AGENDA FOR ’93

The Faculty Search Committee of the School of Theology, chaired by SOT Dean Bill Dyrness, has begun advertising nationally for the positions of Robert E. Munger Chair of Evangelism and Church Growth and Professor of Christian Formation & Discipleship with an emphasis in Youth Ministries.

The Search Committee, made up of faculty, staff, and student representatives, is responsible for the ongoing search for six different vacancies in the SOT faculty. For a variety of reasons, they have earmarked the Evangelism and CFD positions to be appointed by this coming September. The Committee hopes to fill the other four vacancies - Ethics, Old Testament, Multicultural Studies, and New Testament - thereafter.

Much discussion has centered around the nature of these initial two positions: should a full-time faculty person be appointed as the 'resident evangelist' or should we have a coordinator who could bring active traveling evangelists from around the world to the campus to give seminars and teach intensive courses? How much emphasis should a new CFD faculty person place on Youth Ministries vs. general CFD courses?

Similar questions have emerged regarding the other vacancies. Professor David Scholer, appointed by the faculty to replace Bob Guelich as Professor of New Testament, cannot begin teaching until the fall of 1994. So should we look for a one-year appointment next year? Likewise, there has been a long-standing need for a Professor of Multicultural Studies. This need, however, must be weighed against the demand for a full-time director of the African American Ministries department.

Meanwhile, the Search Committee is in the process of interviewing candidates for the positions of Evangelism and CFD. Please call the SOT Dean's Office with any nominations or any questions regarding the procedures.

OPEN MIKE NITE!!!!
Coming soon to Fuller Campus, an enjoyable evening of musical entertainment. The Arts Concern Committee is searching for artists interested in participating in an evening of acoustic music. For anyone interested in performing original and/or favorite songs... please call Chuck Mason at (818) 280-5765. Everyone is welcome!

WHICH THEOLOGY
Drs. Bill Dyrness, Marguerite Shcuster and Miroslav Volf will discuss the nature of systematic theology amidst diverse worldviews. Monday, April 26, 12 - 1 p.m. in Payton 101.

DAY OF PRAYER
The ASC would like to encourage all students to consider active participation in this important school event on April 21. Let us uplift the students of Fuller and the impact we will make in our world. Remember our faculty, administrators and staff here at Fuller. Consider the hurting world that we live in. Use this time to unite as a Christian community and call upon the Lord in prayer.

SPORTS NOTES
Hey, softball fans, we are under way and having a great time out on the field. Please check the Sports Board for information on team rosters and game times. Also soccer and ultimate are on Saturday morning (map on the Sports Board). Soccer starts at 8:45 a.m. and Ultimate is right after that at about 10:15. Don’t wait for a call to participate - be assertive! Come out and play.

We are also taking applications for next year's Sports Coordinator. It's a fun position that includes - organizing teams and schedules, getting refs together, up-keep of the Sports Board and working with fun people. It is a paid position and a PAC membership is included. Call Jennifer or Mark for more info or any questions, 248-9704.

MILITARY CHAPLAIN SCHOLARSHIP
The Samuel Grover Powell Scholarship Fund supports second or third year students who are 1) in the Chaplaincy program (preference is given to Air Force candidates) or 2) serving in the reserves after having completed an active tour of military duty.

IMPORTANT BORROWER INFORMATION
Federal regulations specify that 1) you must contact your lender within ten (10) days if you change your enrollment status, name, or address; 2) you may owe a REFUND to your lender if you drop below half-time in a quarter which part of your loan period (so check with Financial Aid before you drop classes); 3) Fuller must assess financial aid, including designated grants from outside sources, when loan checks arrive. If total aid received exceeds estimated aid, any OVERAWARD must be returned to the lender; 4) Fuller must return unsigned loan checks after thirty (30) days.

EXIT INTERVIEW FOR STUDENT BORROWERS
Loan program regulations now require face to face Exit Interviews for all borrowers. If you have student loans and plan to graduate, transfer, or drop below half-time in Spring '93, you must attend a group Exit Interview at one of the times listed below. The interviews will last approximately 40 minutes. They will include helpful information regarding borrower rights and repayment options. Bring your loan file with you to the session, as well as the address and phone number of your nearest relative and your future employer (if known).

King Moses Generation
peace there can be no unity and without unity the dream remains a dream! Therefore, it is imperative that God raise up a generation of warriors, who are trained in spiritual warfare to break the chains of deception. “For our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realms” (Eph. 6:12). These broken chains will bring freedom to God’s people but the world without Christ will remain in spiritual bondage and disunity.

The gospel of Jesus Christ must be proclaimed in order to offer hope to a world without a dream. Jesus will return only for a people whose dreams are rooted in Him. On that day, we as one people, can lift up our voices and truly shout, “Free at last, free at last, thank God Almighty, we are free at last!”

who was there to empower, encourage, support and defend women preparing for ministry. “The Office of Women’s Concerns exists to provide professional, personal and academic support for women at Fuller, and to serve as an advocate for women on campus at all levels” (p. 18 of the 1992-93 Fuller catalog).

Women need a safe, welcoming, visible place to gather and we need someone in our corner at the seminary. We need someone who will help educate the students, faculty and staff about issues like vertical and horizontal non-discriminatory language, the support of women in ministry, the need for financial aid for women preparing for ministry, the need to get many more women on faculty in all three schools and on the Board of Trustees.

Maybe if the articles deep coming, things will change. A girl can dream, can’t she?

Day of Prayer, con’t

are crises in many areas, including Croatia/Bosnia, Russia, Cambodia, and many other regions in turmoil. It is hoped that students from various parts of the world will come and uplift their nations so that the Fuller community can join in with them. Fuller Seminary is also going through a transition and needs prayer. Individuals as well are always in need of prayer.

Thus a day has been set aside specifically to pray for all these issues. Community prayer sessions, listed below, have been planned. Classes have also been requested to set aside part of their time for prayer in order to join in the spirit of prayer on this day. A 24-hour prayer chain has been set up, and people from the Fuller community are encouraged to sign up for the Garth or this chain.

Various times of prayer (see page 3 for details) have been set up, so that everyone will have a chance to participate. All in the Fuller community are encouraged to join in one or all of these.
