Biography

Dr. Frank Neil Pohorlak (1907-1988) was an ordained minister, Bible scholar, and editor of various Christian periodical publications. In the 1940s, he taught a radio program entitled Crossroads Counselor. He contributed to numerous periodicals including "The Link," "Revelation," "Our Hope", "Revelator," and "War Cry." In the 1960s, Dr. Pohorlak worked as Contributing Editor with the "Unsearchable Riches" magazine -- a publication of Concordant Press dispensationalists founded by Adolf Ernest Knoch and Vladimir Gelesnoff. Dr. Pohorlak was an enthusiastic proponent of Knoch's literal translation of the Bible.

Dr. Pohorlak's relationship with Concordant Publishing Concern lasted approximately 50 years. He wrote two booklets, numerous pamphlets, tracts and articles, and conducted Bible studies called ScriptuResearch. He also served as editor for the Concordant Old Testament and the Concordant Keyword Concordance.

Scope and Content

The Frank Neil Pohorlak Collection includes correspondence, photographs, manuscripts, and Bible teaching materials. Published works include Concordant Press publications, pamphlets, and other collected books and journal articles. Dates range from 1833-1963.

A few folders include Dr. Pohorlak's correspondence with Fuller Seminary founding faculty member Dr. Edward John Carnell, and an article by Fuller Seminary professor George Eldon Ladd with Pohorlak's comments in the margins.

Subjects:

- Carnell, Edward John, 1919-1967
- Christian publications
- Concordant Publishing Concern -- History
- Ladd, George Eldon, 1911-1982
- Pohorlak, Frank Neil.
- Religious tracts
