Reflecting On Black History Month
by Debra Washington, SOT student

Embracing the spirit of this nation’s Black History celebration acknowledges the presence, traditions, and contributions of African-Americans, as well as the richness of our cultural diversity. Many of the historical perspectives written about the Western world have distorted and failed to fully recognize the African influence on the development of America, or that of indigenous Americans, Asians, Latinos and others. Inspirational tributes, such as Black History Month, paint a more accurate portrait of the landscape, and enable generations of African descendants to proudly reconnect ourselves to our community, cultural heritage and to ancestors from whom we have inherited the gift of instinctive survival.

The choice of African-Americans, particularly Black Christians, to intentionally look back and learn from our collective past as we shape our present and future, does not suggest a desire to posit some exclusionary stance over and against the rest of the body of Christ, nor to devalue the achievements of other ethnic groups. Rather, we are determined to raise African-American consciousness to the level at which the world view and self-concept of all African-Americans is self-defined rather than other-determined. Many African-Americans consider it our responsibility to enable and empower one another to accurately depict who we are, where we came from, how we are going. Somewhere along our historical journey, some African-Americans have become convinced that being self-determined -- situating African ideals and values at the nucleus of any analysis of our culture and behavior -- is un-American and un-Christian.

The almost 400-year history of the African in America has been a “virtual nightmare of constant social adjustment to repression in a rapidly shifting, and often predatory” society. Forbidden to be African and not allowed to be American, hundreds of thousands of sons and daughters and mothers and fathers, proud citizens of a vast and ancient continent, were enslaved in this country. In fact, they were conditioned to believe such inhumane treatment was the will of God. Not long ago, it was illegal for African-Americans to be taught to read or write; to pursue an education, at a seminary or ANY academic institution; to love and marry with any degree of permanence; to become parents with any hope of living with our children to maturity; to be fairly compensated for work performed; to own property; to freely worship the Most-High God; to name ourselves.

We must not, nor allow America to, forget lest we allow future segments of society to again erroneously image our creator and dehumanize members of his flock. Black History Month is a celebration of the desperate struggle of an oppressed people to survive. And, testimonies of survival -- whether they flow from the lips of Rosa Parks, the determined bus rider; a Holocaust death camp member; or a Chinese immigrant whose belief in the God of justice equates to an arrest warrant in her native land -- are testimonies all people can celebrate.

Slavery Of The Mind
by Anthea Butler, SOT Student

This is not what I was supposed to write. I had been asked by the SEMI to write a piece on why Black History month exists. Last Saturday night, however, I saw Schindler's List. I actually began to physically grieve for my people, not just intellectually. We have experienced the same kind of hatred, murder, and scorn. We are a people who left a continent that they once ruled, in exchange for the whip, and the lash. You ask how a movie about the extermination of the Jewish people can put me in touch with our African American Past. It did.

For once, I didn’t see Chicken George jumping around in Roots, or Mammy comforting Scarlett. I saw what slavery has done to a people. I saw the same pain that extermination brought to the Jews.

It makes you hard, uneasy. You have unresolved pain and grief -- a sense of anger at your oppressors, yet strength, hope, and resilient nature that continues to make you push towards life. That is what we remember in Black History month. We remember those who have gone before us -- whose blood was spilled on the ground of this nation, whose talents built the North, homes in the South.

Slavery
rustled cattle in the Midwest and had a thriving community in Los Angeles of the early 1900's. I see William Seymour, who humbled himself to sit outside the class of Charles Parham, to learn about the Holy Spirit. Seymour went on, unnoticed for some time, to be the Father of the Pentecostal movement at Azusa Street.

We remember those who died, so that others might live. There is Nat Turner, who has a vision from the Lord to lead his people, but died violently. And Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., cut down on a balcony in Memphis. I thought of these and many others as I watched a people like us -- being called rats, shot at, gassed, and burned -- in a nightmare beyond imagination.

The two experiences differ, but are the same. We were, and are, hated for something we cannot change -- our ethnicity. Who God created us to be. Something we should not be punished for, nor judged. You ask, why a whole month? There is that much to remember.

Carter G. Woodson, African-American Historian, and founder for the Study of Negro Life and History, writes in The Mis-Education of the Negro, "In History, of course, The Negro has no place in this curriculum (of American Schools). He was pictured as a human being of the lower order.

A AIDS

WHEN THE CHURCH HAS

A Seminary-wide AIDS Education Workshop

Time: Friday, February 11, 10 a.m.-1 p.m.
Place: Payton 101
Cost: $3.00 (includes lunch)

What do we do when a colleague, a friend, a parishioner, or a student has AIDS? Sometime this decade, we will all be dealing with HIV/AIDS at school and in our congregations. One in every 260 Americans has HIV, and rates of new infection are rising fastest among teenagers and women. AIDS affects not only individuals, but wider circles of family, friends, co-workers, church, and community members. Working with people affected by HIV and AIDS is a skill all of us at Fuller need, whatever our present role.

This seminar will present information on HIV/AIDS that is focused on the needs of the seminary community. Our presenters, Andrew Foster and Fuller alumna Nancy Breuer, will also lead a discussion of ways to talk with, counsel, and be genuinely helpful to someone living with HIV or facing the losses of AIDS. This is your opportunity to participate in a lively update on the epidemic that includes these topics:

* Separating myth from fact: a reality check
* HIV infection prevention and HIV testing
* When a Christian is HIV infected, or has AIDS

By attending this seminar, you’ll acquire skills you can use at work, in ministry, and in your personal life to help educate and heal your own community. Faculty, staff, administration, and students are all encouraged to attend!

PILLARS OF OUR COMMUNITY

Student government allows me the privilege to work in partnership with a broad cross-section of the Fuller community -- from Trustees to faculty and staff to my peers. It also provides for the opportunity to meet with some of the pillars of the institution -- women and men who, over the years, have committed their lives to support the seminary. Students come and go each quarter, but this band of faithfuls remain to hold the arms of Moses.

I met one of the Fuller pillars this week.

Mrs. Inez Smith came to visit the ASC office leaving behind a sprinkling of her energy and passion for this place. It seems that Inez came to Fuller way back. In fact, she helped type Dr. David Hubbard’s papers when he was a budding student here. Then after the Hubbards returned from Scotland, they would often stay at the Smith’s home while visiting Pasadena.

On one of these occasions, Dr. Hubbard was helping with the dishes and asked Inez, “Do you know why I’m here?” Inez replied “No, why?” He said, “They want me to be president of Fuller.” Inez immediately asked “Oh, do you want me to go and help you?” And he said, “That was my next question.” Twenty years later she “retired” from being Dr. Hubbard’s personal secretary to help Dr. Lloyd Oglivie in his television and radio ministry. Now in her autumn years, Inez has again channeled her unfailing devotion towards Fuller Seminary.

For the last five years, Inez Smith has led the Fuller Seminary Auxiliary, some 150 folk, in the promotion of the seminary and in the raising of finance for the student body. Last year, over $22,000 was given by the Seminary Auxiliary towards tuition scholarships. Thank God for the pillars like Inez who have quietly buttressed this institution with love and loyalty.

Warm regards in Christ,
Rob Gallagher

FULLER FOLLIES UPDATE

We are still waiting for YOU to come in and tell us that you have a wonderful act for the Follies. The night of the Fuller Follies is approaching fast—it’s Friday, February 25, so call Ana Gan NOW (x5452), so we will be sure to include your act in this exciting Fuller extravaganza!

ARTS CONCERNS

will be meeting this Thursday, February 3, at 12 noon in the 3rd floor conference Room. Agenda items for this meeting include: 1) A Spring Arts Festival, 2) A gallery show, 3) museum trips, 4) discussions/brown bag luncheons with professors and 5) ? - your ideas here. Please join us.

GET INVOLVED IN INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS CONCERNS

ISCC is inviting representatives from different ethnic groups to join their committee. Please call Marisa Vitoria at (818) 797-8950 or Johnny Chan at (818) 683-9558. It’s a very rewarding experience. Possible representatives from Europe, the Middle East, and Australia are especially welcome!

BOARD OF DECLARATION FOLLOW UP

An OPEN FORUM is scheduled for Tuesday, February 8, in Payton 101A, 11:30-1:00 pm. The Forum is designed to address the concerns that students wrote on the Board of Declaration which are: 1. Fuller Financial Allocations, especially tuition rates/fees, led by Lee Merritt, Fuller’s Vice President for Finance. 1. Campus parking, led by Larry J. Lloyd, Supervisor of Parking and Security. 3. ASC Finances, specifically, the allocation of your ASC dues, led by Barbara Driskill, ASC Treasurer. Time will be set aside to answer your questions regarding these important issues affecting all of us.

PEACE AND JUSTICE FOR ALL

Initiated and envisioned by students concerned about issues of ethical and social importance, the Peace and Justice Concerns Committee (PJCC) encourages the Fuller community to become more sensitive to and aware of the social problems facing contemporary society. The PJCC acts as a resource whereby every student may be better informed of areas of acute human need, be assisted in her or his own struggle to work through the implications of the gospel for contemporary social issues, and become actively engaged in meeting human needs and addressing social and ethical issues.

The Peace and Justice Concerns Office is located on the third floor of Kreysser Hall (above the Catalyst). For more info., you may call Tracy at (818) 584-5454. Also, look for announcements published in The Semi as well as notices posted on the Peace and Justice Bulletin Board located next to Payton 101. Watch for upcoming events. We will be sponsoring a trip to the Museum of Tolerance on Sunday, April 10th. All are welcome!

ATTENTION SOT STUDENTS

Dateless on a Friday night? (If so, you’re not alone!) The TGU is here to help spice up your social life. Join fellow SOT students for movies, games, conversation and munchies on Friday, February 11, 8-11 pm at the “Cabin on the Mount,” 1080E. Rubio, Altadena. Watch the TGU bulletin board for more details!

ASC GOSSIP UPDATE

Did you know that SWM President, Mark Stoscher and Missions Concerns Chairperson, Ruth Stock are engaged to be married? Did you know that ASC Vice President, Joyce Stickney is engaged to Calvin Prakasim? AND...did you know that ASC President Rob Gallagher just celebrated his 20th(!) Wedding Anniversary with his wife, Dolores in January? Pass on your congratulations to these folks as you see them on campus!
Slavery

No thought was given to the history of Africa except so far as it had been a field of exploitation for the Caucasian. You might study the history as it was offered in our system from the elementary school throughout the university, and you would never hear Africa mentioned except in the negative. You would never thereby learn that Africans first domesticated the sheep, goat and cow, developed the idea of trial by jury, produced the first stringed instruments, and gave the world its greatest boon in the discovery of iron. You would never know..."

These words were published in 1933. Things have progressed, but not as far as we all have to go.

Why Black History Month? Simply put, you need to know who we are. You need to know that we have a place in God’s order for bringing his kingdom upon this earth — that we have been created in His image, for good works before the foundation of the world. We have a heritage, and we want that to be acknowledged and affirmed.
