The Lone Ranger is Dead
by Thea DeGroot

As we all know, Fuller can be a lonely place. We are often trying to juggle so many things - homework, jobs, internships and volunteer work - that relationships get lost in the shuffle. Sadly, we came here to learn how to better be with other people. We came knowing that God was calling us to walk beside people in the various stages of their lives. Why, then, can't we do this during our time of training?

Community Houses are one way in which people are trying to address this issue. With the help of these houses, portions of the Fuller community are trying to learn what it truly means to walk beside others.

We know that learning must touch all aspects of ourselves to have a life-changing impact. If we are to integrate our theology, theory and skills into our lives, we need to find a place to apply ourselves. What better place to learn this, then, with others committed to the same goal?

I have become involved with a community house in a personal way, living for seven months in such a house. It is quite a switch from the apartment I lived alone in before coming to Fuller, or even the shared apartment that I lived in last year. Adjusting yourself to a number of other people—with differing ideas of how things should happen—defeat and burn us out if we work with a Lone-Ranger-approach. I challenge you to find ways to bring community into your lives during your time here at Fuller.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

DEAN DYNESS, OPEN HOURS

Bill Dymess, Dean of the School of Theology, has established "Open Hours" from 11 a.m. - 12 noon on Wednesdays and from 2 p.m. - 3 p.m. on Thursdays. His door will be "open" to anyone wanting to meet with him without an appointment on any subject of concern on a "first-come / first-serve" basis. While this time has been arranged with students in mind, staff and faculty are also welcome to take advantage of these open hours. The only exceptions to this rule will be:

Thursday, March 10

Anyone interested should come during the above-mentioned hours to the Dean’s Office, Payton Hall, Room 216.

DEALING WITH THE LIABILITY OF MINISTRY

Recognizing the need for current information on how to cope with the growing concerns around liability in ministry, The Office of Continuing Education is offering the Ministry Liability Workshop at 8:00 a.m.- 4:30 p.m. on Friday, March 11, in Travis. Dennis Kasper, a partner in the Los Angeles firm of Lewis, D’Amato, Brisbois & Brisgaard — a firm specializing in labor/management matters and representing religious and charitable organizations — will lead the workshop for attorneys, staff members of church and parachurch organizations, and others involved in liability issues. The fee for Fuller students, Alumni/ae and employees is $65, which includes a 230-page legal handbook compiled by Kasper. MCLE and general CEUs are available. To register, please call 818-584-5338.

"WE'RE NOT HEADHUNTERS"

This is the second part in a series of articles about the service forum organized two weeks ago by the All Seminary Council to answer student concerns. Larry J. Lloyd (Supervisor of Security & Parking) gave an informative presentation on the present parking situation at the seminary. He began by encouraging the campus to consider car pooling or joining the computerized ride share program. Any transport questions, together with reduced bus fees, can be obtained from Margie McKenna at the Auxiliary Services Office.

Lloyd then described the available parking sites for commuters. Most people are aware of the psychology parking lot that fills up quickly, but many forget that there are over 100 spaces at Corson and 17 spaces reserved at the Scottish Rites parking lot. Lloyd commented that because not enough students were using the 25 paid spaces at the Church of Religious Science lot, it had to be released. It seems evident that students are unwilling to walk the additional five minutes to class. Some alleviation of the parking congestion has come for staff and faculty with the addition of the lot behind the refectory. There are, however, spaces available only for students who are in a car pool or ride share program.

"We're not head hunters in the parking office," said Lloyd. "Some people think we are trying to get them." He pointed out that the cost of citations are a fraction of what they are on other campuses. At Fuller, we pay $5 compared to $25 at Pasadena City College. Further, if we park in a restricted handicapped area at PCC we would fined $250 while Fuller charges $52. Lloyd warns that the Security & Parking Office patrol the parking lots at night between 5 to 11 pm citing cars, especially those in the guest spaces at the psychology building.

The question was asked, "If we've tried everywhere, can't find a space and park in a restricted area, what do we do?" If that happens, Lloyd encourages the offender to come and talk to them. Parking Operations may allow students to temporarily park in the restricted area without getting a ticket; but, we have had to try every available lot and not just be unwilling to walk from the Corson lot. Lloyd said, "Come and see us if you are parked in a restricted area. If you don't come, then the axe will fall. If you come, then grace is available." Sounds biblical to me.

Warm regards in Christ,
Rob Gallagher.
