HAVE WE GONE TOO FAR?

This past year the campus library spent $1,500 on the repair and replacement of vandalized and stolen materials. This figure represents just a small portion of what could be spent, if only the funds were available.

The SEMI spoke recently with John Dickason, Director of the McAlister Library. "It may come as a surprise to many people that theft and vandalism are significant problems in theological institutions. It has been documented that, historically, theological libraries have been hit very hard."

Three main problems are confronted by our library staff on a regular basis. One is theft. Whenever a major inventory of material is undertaken, at least 1,000 items will come up as missing, many of them stolen. These items are lost to our library forever.

One of the more frustrating aspects of this is what John calls "temporary theft." He explains, "What is very painful for us and for the students is the disappearance of materials that are needed for specific courses—materials on reserve. People will take materials off reserve shelves and hide these materials, or remove them from the library altogether. Some of these materials, not all of them, will then show up again after the course is finished, but they are basically inaccessible to other students for the remainder of the course."

As for the library security system, "What we have is very good at preventing accidental disappearance of materials. All of us, at some time, pick up books accidentally and don't realize what we have put in our bags. But if someone really intends to remove materials from the library, there is virtually nothing we can do to prevent that."

Another problem is mutilation of library materials. John tells us of students who will bring into the library a razor blade and cut out an article from a journal or an entire chapter from a book. "Earlier this week we discovered an index volume that had the entire contents cut out. They left us the binding!" One of the fascinating discoveries John and his staff have made is that a lot of the theft and mutilation occurs to materials dealing with ethics. "People will come in and cut out a chapter on ethics from a reference encyclopedia. It is an irony."

Apart from these more extreme forms of vandalism, marking of books happens almost daily. A student will mark a book with lines and annotations, using highlighters, ink pens and pencils. As John says, "This effectively destroys the reading experience for anyone coming after that student." Particularly distressing is John's recent discovery of a book written by a Fuller professor, in which a student has gone through the book writing malicious comments on almost every page.

When asked if he ever gets angry, John responds, "I think I've passed the phase of being angered. I think saddened would be a more accurate word, grieved that these sorts of things happen. I don't know what it is about a theological institution that would attract a small number of students who have no developed sense of moral conscience. The vast majority of students have, of course, incredible integrity and honesty. But in any institution there is always a minority of students who can ruin the educational experience of several thousand others."

One of the consequences of this is cost. Replacing stolen or vandalized materials is an expensive business. The expense of replacing missing periodicals, some of them no longer available, is significant, not to mention the labor costs of re-cataloging and rebinding of materials. Many of the books that are stolen are out of print. Usually the replacement cost far

"Students will bring into the library a razor blade and cut out an article from a journal or an entire chapter from a book."
SUMMER WEDDINGS

Word has it that there were more than just a few Fullerites who did the "wedding-thing" during the summer. We managed to wrangle up details on some of those happy days.

Karen Sigmond, 2nd year PhD student in Clinical Psychology, was married to Dan DeForrest in Indianapolis, Indiana on September 3. Dan is a graduate in psychology and works at a residential care facility for the mentally and developmentally disabled. Both Karen and Dan walked the aisle with both of their parents, and were supported by 16 attendants, both men and women on each side.

Karen & Dan

Brian Spangler, 1st year MDiv student, tied the knot with Rachel Clement on July 19 at a private residence by Kings River in Sanger, California. "Since we were married by a flowing river in 90-degree heat, the mosquitoes were out in full force. Nevertheless, everyone present enjoyed themselves." Rachel is a bilingual fourth-grade teacher with the Azusa Unified School District.

Brian & Rachel

Natalie Dong, 2nd year student in Clinical Psychology, was married July 9 to Jay Iinuma who is completing his residency at White Memorial Medical Center in East L.A. They were married in an open-air atrium in Seattle, Washington. Natalie recalls, "A few days before our wedding, my diamond mounting broke off from my ring. It was soon found, but then I had no ring to wear. At our reception my husband gave me a replacement, made of bright red candy! Now we have snapshots showing a large, red, almost glowing, object on my hand. Everyone asks about it!"

Natalie & Jay

Daniel Ho, 2nd year MDiv student, married Portia Ng on September 27 at a Baptist Church in Hong Kong. "Over 400 people came to our wedding. We had a slide show in the ceremony which showed pictures of us in our childhood. Our friends laughed with joy!" Daniel was overjoyed to be able to return to Fuller with his wife. Portia is a high school teacher and will soon enroll as a student at Fuller with Daniel.

Daniel & Portia

Other students married in the summer were Tami and Michael Mitsumori-Miller (SOP), Gloria Griffith, Director of Media Services, Robert Blackman (SOT), Ronald McMillan and Eolene Boyd (SOT), and Esther Song-Vigil (SOP) and Marcos Vigil. Sorry we don’t have more details on these folks. No doubt there are others too. Let us know if we missed you. Our congratulations to all!

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

Thank you for your sincere and sensitive piece regarding off-color humor....I have often wondered how many people around me are struggling with homosexuality while others feel free to poke fun at the situation....I have decided to make a conscious effort to present myself as one approachable about this subject; laughing at ridiculous jokes or comments would never encourage another to share his or her struggle with me.

D.H.

Dear Editor,

I can’t believe you would accept advertising from a so-called "Christian" dating agency. What a scam! Are you desperate, or what?

PRE-PH.D. LUNCH DISCUSSION

including Professors Nancey Murphy and Marianne Meye-Thompson

WED. OCT 19

11:30 - 1:00 pm

In Faculty Commons
(The Fishbowl Room in the Garth)

Sponsored by School of Theology Academic Advising
Two weeks ago we looked at a Bible study program, The Online Bible, DOS version, released by Online Bible, USA. This company also produces a Macintosh version of the same program.

Much like the IBM version, the OLB for Macintosh is a good, basic program which is very inexpensive. The selection of Bible texts and other Bible study helps is somewhat smaller than for the IBM, but they are working on expanding the selection. Again, nearly all the texts and resources available are not copyrighted which explains the low cost. Eight English translations, a Spanish translation, three Greek texts and a consonantal Hebrew text are currently available. For study helps, they include Greek/Hebrew lexicons, cross references from Treasury of Scripture Knowledge, Robertson's Word Pictures in the NT, Matthew Henry Concise Commentary, and a few other sets of notes. Currently each Bible and study help must be purchased on floppy disk, at prices ranging from $3 to $15 ($25 for the British NIV), and there are plans to make all of this (and other texts) available on CD-ROM as for IBM.

The Mac program format is much friendlier and more attractive than the IBM version. You can do the same sort of searches as with the IBM (see Week 2 SEMI), and the "hypertext" capability is even easier. All you need to do is click on the verse, word, or Strong’s number with the mouse pointer and it opens a window with the desired cross-reference, definition, etc. There is included a “f-key” program which allows you to import verses into your Mac word processor without having to switch between programs. This is even possible with Greek and Hebrew, as those texts come with the True-Type fonts which can be used with any Mac program.

The manual for the OLB-Mac is currently available "on-line;" a printed manual is still forthcoming. Also, the manual only covers a limited number of the texts available, as was the case with the IBM manual. Still, it provides enough direction to give anyone a good start with the program. Even more so than the IBM version, The Online Bible for Macintosh is an excellent tool to add to your software library.

Orders to: Online Bible, USA, P.O. Box 21, Bronson, MI 49028 - 1-800-243-7124.

Student government goals this year may be summarized under three headings. They are Communication, Continuity and Concerns.

Communication - An extremely important and continuing challenge is to communicate who we are and what we are doing. The ASC will be endeavoring to do this through our regular page in the SEMI, the various notice boards around campus, flyers and direct contact with students. All departments will be encouraged to display photographs of their committees so that you will know your representatives. In addition, Mike Rewers (ASC Vice President) has initiated a student events calendar which will be displayed in the SEMI and on notice boards.

Continuity - A number of issues need to be carried over from last year. The proposal by Joyce Stickney’s task force for the Catalyst to be refurbished and become a warmer and more exciting place to be needs to be completed. Also, Barbara Driskill led the Council in bringing changes to the ASC budget that saw greater equity, accountability and unity. Those changes need to be communicated to the new officers and consolidated. Finally, arising out of last year’s cabinet was a concern that our constitution had not been legally ratified by both the trustees and the students. Through the help of Ria Rowland, Fuller’s in-house legal counsel, a draft of a new constitution and by-laws has been submitted for review and revision. This will soon be available to all interested persons for input.

Concerns - The most important goal for the ASC is to be your voice at Fuller. Short-term advocacy is our number one priority. Realizing that long-term advocacy needs to be carried on by the administration and trustees, we want to speak to them on your behalf. We have the opportunity to be participants in over fifty committees where we represent your interests, from the trustees through to the three schools and service areas.

In order to serve you more effectively, we need to know your concerns. Once your concerns have been identified, they then may be prioritized and processed. We need your help. Please let us know your particular concerns, whether they be academic, ethical or service oriented. Speak to your Graduate Union representatives and/or write on the Board of Declaration. We are listening.

Warm regards in Christ,

Rob Gallagher

Community: Ministry of Concern

Community building is a ministry concern for the OCC. Our seminary community is diverse and rich: singles, marrieds, and families; all ages, genders, and races; many denominations and nationalities; and varied academic interests. Academic study leading to ministry is unbalanced and inadequate when community is absent, as is life without relationships. Whether one is a single or married seminarian or a member of a family while at Fuller, the stress of graduate studies affects us all in all of our relationships. Some of that stress could be alleviated through community support.

In an attempt to be proactive, OCC has planned CONNECTIONS for October 21 & 22. The entire Fuller family in all its diversity is invited, even children of all ages have been included in the program. The idea is simply to CONNECT through worship, sharing and learning together. More on this later. The community needs you, and you need the community.

The Office of Christian Community is here to support your relationship with God while you're at Fuller. In addition to these Fall activities, please feel free to stop by the office to talk or pray. We are located on the second floor of the Catalyst building or you can reach us by phone at (818) 584-5322, or drop us a note at FTS Box 243.

Connections: Building Community in Seminary

This retreat for the whole Fuller family - singles, couples, and families - will be held on campus Friday night and Saturday, October 21 & 22. Jack & Judy Balswick will be the primary presenters, and the retreat will include intergenerational worship, community building, children's programming and nursery, and workshops. Fees are $12/adult and $7/child if you register by October 12 and $15/adult and $10/child thereafter. Fees include snacks and Saturday lunch. Contact Katie, Ellen, Chuck or Dee at 584-5322.

Prayer Groups

OCC is collecting a list of groups which meet regularly to pray. If you meet with such a group, please contact us with particulars about time, location and prayer focus so that we can inform others. If you are looking for a prayer group to join, please come by our office for information about the various groups already formed.

Small Groups

OCC wants to connect persons interested in forming small groups, or couples' small groups, from the Fuller community. Contact Ellen, 584-5322, for the possibilities.

Tuesdays at Ten

Tuesdays at Ten gives the Fuller community the opportunity to gather for prayer training and experience. Every Tuesday from 10 - 10:40 a.m., during the chapel hour, in Payton 101 there will be brief sharing on various areas of prayer and then the rest of the time will be spent in prayer. Doug Gregg and Cathy Schaller, among others, will facilitate this opportunity to grow in intimacy with God.

The Couple’s Garden

This popular and unique opportunity on Fuller campus is an encouragement for married couples to give A Season Ticket to One Another through these guided date nights. Special Fuller rates are $6/session or $36 for all six sessions through the year. The next Fall date night is Saturday, November 19 at 6 p.m. in Payton 101. Contact Chuck or Dee at 584-5322.
exceeds the original purchase price. "If the book is out of print it involves much more time and money searching through antiquarian catalogues and locating replacement material. Purchasing and labor costs run into a substantial amount of money." That money has to be found somewhere, and we all have to share that burden through higher tuition costs.

But for John, the cost of this process is not the crucial issue. "Probably the most important issue that I am dealing with in my own reflection is not a moral, ethical or financial issue. It is the loss of tradition. Christianity is a historical tradition, a historical faith. Our beliefs are rooted in the events of history and in a long history of interpretation and theological reflection on that faith. All of these voices—mainline voices, marginalized voices, women’s voices, male voices, orthodox and heretical—are important for our understanding of the faith. The Church has been through too many episodes of inquisition and book burning. In my estimation, it is a most grievous thing that some of these voices are lost to us. And when they are lost here, they may be lost altogether. Books themselves are brittle and fragile. Restoration processes cannot work fast enough. It is the vulnerability of these books, these voices, that concerns me."

Indeed, it should concern us all. There is a display of vandalized books set up on the first floor of the library this week. Take a look. Perhaps your conscience needs to be prodded.

FINANCIAL AID

I received a grant for Fuller. Why isn’t it showing up on my account? Grant-in-aid from Fuller will be disbursed to your account in the sixth week of the quarter. If the units you are enrolled in currently are different than you originally anticipated, please come into the office and complete a change form. This will ensure the correct amount of grant-in-aid is applied to your account at that time.

Winter loans pending

If you are expecting a second loan check for the Winter Quarter, you will automatically be included on the pending list. If you are completing a new loan application, it must be submitted by October 24, 1994 in order to be included on the loans pending list.

For all of you out there wondering, “What is a loan pending list and is it essential to my very survival?” The pending list has been designed to accommodate students who want to continue with their studies but they have a back balance on their account and cannot register. As long as a student has been certified for a loan amount which is greater than their back balance, she or he can register by paying $100. Isn’t that great? We thought so. However, there are some conditions. First, to be on the loan pending list, you must meet the deadline. Volume is so high that we must set a final date of receipt in order to guarantee that at least some people will be on the list. Second, loan application as well as all other financial aid materials must be complete by the deadline. Third, the loans pending list is not essential to your survival as a homosapien but it may help you out on your student quest, so don’t be shy, use it! In fact, we interviewed several students who have been on previous pending lists; some were repeat participants. One student said, "It was deep, yet shallow." Another said, "Try it, I did." One other student said, "It’s a whole new world." As you can tell, there have been many positive responses. There are some negative ones, but we have edited them out.
