Historical Background

Particularly noteworthy in the beginning of the Society were a series of conferences in the early 1960s conducted at Wesleyan/Holiness colleges under the leadership of Kenneth Geiger, president of the National Holiness Association (NHA). Important papers from these conferences were published as Insights into Holiness (1963) and Further Insights into Holiness (1963). These conferences culminated in the Winona Lake Study Conference on the Distinctives of Arminian-Wesleyan Theology, held in November, 1964, and sponsored by the NHA. Papers from this conference were published as The Word and the Doctrine in 1965. It was this meeting that set the stage for the organization of the Wesleyan Theological Society at the April, 1965, NHA meeting in Detroit.

In November, 1965, the organization's inaugural meeting at Spring Arbor College drew approximately sixty people. Reflecting the diversity of its parent body, the NHA, papers were presented by members of the Methodist Church, Church of the Nazarene, United Missionary Church, Free Methodist Church, Wesleyan Methodist Church, and the Salvation Army. When the initial membership drive ended in January of 1966, the organization could claim ninety-two charter members. Since its inception, the WTS has experienced steady membership growth with 286 members by 1970. In 2005, there were 600 members from around the world.

Among the numerous ecumenical endeavors have been joint meetings with the Society for Pentecostal Studies (SPS). SPS hosted the first joint meeting at the Church of God Theological Seminary in Cleveland, TN, in 1998. Building on the success of that meeting, a second joint WTS-SPS meeting hosted by the Wesleyan/Holiness Studies Center of Asbury Theological Seminary Meeting occurred in 2003. A third joint meeting was held in 2008.
