Last Tuesday more than 150 people gathered in the Garth on the Fuller campus for a lunch-hour rally to protest Proposition 187. Sponsored by Dr. Isaac Canales, Director of the Hispanic Church Studies Department, the rally featured speakers opposed to the proposition coming before voters this week.

Among those who spoke to this issue were Drs. Isaac Canales, Bill Pannell, Jorge Taylor, and Leo Marmol. Students and staff members from all three schools also spoke passionately against this proposition, including the Chairperson of the Peace and Justice Concerns Committee, Kent Fromer.

Feelings run deep within our own seminary community, both for and against this proposition. We have gathered a number of those perspectives in this edition of the SEMI.

A Professor's Perspective

by Dr. Isaac J. Canales

Proposition 187 is a very controversial issue for the Latino Hispanic community. If it becomes law, it will create a bureaucratic nightmare for the State of California and, more importantly, will have a disastrous effect on the children of immigrant parents and their family structures.

Millions of taxpayers' dollars will be spent trying to police Unified School Districts throughout the State to determine who the immigrant children are who should no longer receive education and schooling and other auxiliary services which they might need. This policing will only make more difficult the jobs of our already over worked inner-city public schools.

These schools will begin to act as extensions of the Immigration Naturalization Services as they will be forced to report the families of immigrant children to the INS. This will only set the Latino community further back into an atmosphere of intimidation and unnecessary psychological cruelty.

Some feel that the Latinos are taking jobs away from us. Now really ... any American-born person would never work for the wages that undocumented Latinos will work for, which are often paid under the table. They receive no benefits for retirement from their employers and will never complain for higher wages for fear of deportation or other reprisals. This excuse will not do!

This proposition is polarizing the ethnic communities, creating bitterness and suspicion among the people. It is senseless in light of an already fragmented ethnic community.

Truthfully, it appears as a last ditch effort for Pete Wilson to clear his name of the responsibility he must face for the economic and social problems in the State of California. This proposition would be a quick fix for his administration at the expense of needy ethnic children. It is not only an embarrassing oversight of justice and mercy, but a shame that a man would be so hard-up to be governor that he would take away a free lunch from a Mexican 7 year old whose only worry should be “What’s 2x10?”

Vote NO on 187!
Campus Perspectives

A brief stroll through the Garth last week gave us some reaction from students to Prop. 187. The following are some excerpts from their responses:

"As a former public school teacher, I wouldn't want the responsibility of policing this legislation in the classroom. I would say that over half of my students were illegals. As a teacher I want to focus on the skills I am endeavoring to teach, not on the enforcement of such a law...This legislation is focusing on one group of people. If you look Hispanic then you will be questioned constantly, no matter how long you've been in this country. This is an oppressed people, both here and in their homeland. As Christians, we should be embracing them, not turning them away." (Sylvia SWM)

"Prop. 187 is a conservative/liberal issue. The conservatives want less government services, the liberals want more. They want people to come in to the country for these services in the hope that they will become potential voters. This is what keeps the Democrats in power - the more they give away the more votes they get. For the last 40 years the liberals have developed a language to intimidate the conservative vote. This language includes words like 'racist,' and 'lack of compassion,' so that conservatives will say to themselves, 'I don't want to be identified as a racist, so I'll vote against it.' I will be voting YES on this issue, because it gives the State the opportunity to present to the courts the question of whether or not we will continue to allow just anybody to come into this country. How can the State continue to pay the bill for health care and education for all of these people indefinitely?" (Hal SOT)

"This proposition is racist! We are talking about people who really need the opportunity to do just as well as everyone else has done here. That's what America is all about. We are not about keeping people out. This is supposed to be the land of the free. If we are going to vote YES on prop. 187, then we should kick everybody out because we are all immigrants!" (Anthea SOT)

"This has nothing to do with being racist! There is no reference to race in this proposition. It is solely about immigration status. Would you even consider traveling to Europe without a valid passport or visa? Why in the world do we think it is unreasonable to follow procedures for legal residency set out by the government? Why are these people demanding social services from a government and opposing legislation for which they are not even eligible to vote? At least they could take the trouble to get their papers in order first." (Joe SOT)

Dr. Nancy Murphy, Associate Professor of Christian Philosophy, also feels passionately about this issue. She added these thoughts to the debate: "The central message of Christianity is loyalty to Christ and His people. National boundaries should mean very little to us. The language of 'we & they' is not Christian language...The borders we are talking about are essentially economic boundaries. This legislation is out to reinforce our borders so as to maintain our own economic advantages." ✤

Another Perspective

by Dave Eubanks

In listening to the discussions of Prop. 187 and seeing the distress it has brought in California, I decided to read the proposition myself and try to understand this issue. After reading the proposition, my feeling is that it is basically an attempt to reinforce the existing immigration laws. It is the status of these existing immigration laws that is the deeper issue at stake.

If there are unjust or unworkable laws in existence, then we should change those laws. But to willingly break or 'turn a blind eye' to an existing law is not only a recipe for eventual chaos, it does not solve the problem.

A recent example involving laws that needed to be changed is found in the Civil Rights Movement. Martin Luther King Jr. and others were willing to pay the price for breaking laws they knew were wrong and through their righteous and yet law-respecting stand, the law was changed.

Prop. 187 may be a flawed attempt to reinforce our existing immigration laws, but I do not see it as racist because it pertains to non-citizens of every race. Every nation has and needs laws to function properly and justly. No nation governs perfectly, but disregarding a law will not solve problems. Attacking the enforcement of law, and not the law itself, is to participate in a lie, and lies are not in the province of a healthy society.

If nothing else, Prop. 187 should cause us to look hard at our existing immigration laws and policies. We can then decide whether or not we want to change them and how we want to enforce them.

Dave is in the MDiv program and is anticipating, with his wife, missionary service in Burma upon completion of his degree.

EDITORIAL

It is not our role as a campus paper to take sides on any political issue. We have endeavored to represent a wide range of perspectives. While it may appear that we have leaned in the negative direction, it needs to be noted that it was a challenge to find willing contributors to write in favour of this proposition. We thank Dave Eubanks for his courage.

What is of greater concern to us is the number of students we talked to who were unaware of issues such as this, and who expressed no real desire to be informed. In a country in which the opportunity is freely available to participate in the development of a fair and just society, it is imperative that citizens of this country take hold of that responsibility seriously.

It is not our mission to convince you to vote for or against this issue, but simply to vote! As a Christian you have a voice. For God's sake, use it!
This Little Heart
by Rebecca Smith Shwartz

During the summer, my 2 year old son, Nathan, invited Jesus into his heart. Now, I know he doesn’t have any idea of what sin and repentance are, but he does know that he loves Jesus. All this came about through a series of events.

Nathan and I were stuck at home because of the chicken pox, so we borrowed a video. The title song had a line that went, “I heard Him knock; I let Him in. Now this little heart has a great big love for Jesus.” He also attended a vacation Bible school. We had lots of talks about where Jesus is and how He gets into your heart. At some point, he made his decision and told us that Jesus was now in his heart.

From that point on, whenever we prayed together, he would say, “Jesus come out of my heart and help you.” He had the revelation that Jesus, who was now “in him”, would meet the needs of others. The Bible says, “Greater is he who is in me than he who is in the world.” How simple and pure is Nathan’s desire. Yet, as adults, we can try to help others in so many different ways and forget to simply let Jesus out of our hearts to touch those around us.

I want to be more like Nathan. I want to let Jesus come out of my heart to love others. Rebecca is the mother of two children and is married to Fil who is in his 3rd year of the MDiv program.

More Wedding Bells
Thomas Emery, 1st year MDiv student, who was married to Carol Franke on August 27 in Cincinnati by Rev. Pat Hartsch, Pastor of College Hill Presbyterian Church and a Fuller graduate. Thomas recalls, “To the amusement of all, our four year old ring bearer kept balancing the ring box on his head and the little flower girl kept flipping her hoop dress over her head during the ceremony.” Carol was an R.N. at a Pregnancy Care Center in Cincinnati and is now looking for similar employment here in Pasadena. Our best wishes to you both!

Anyone do justice to graduate-level study with this level of financial burden on students attending Fuller Seminary is working over 30 hours just to make ends meet. How can work no more than 15 hours per week. Most students now are working between 20 and 30 hours per week, with many working over 30 hours just to make ends meet. How can anyone do justice to graduate-level study with this level of outside work? There are pressures on all sides for the too few dollars that are available, and I do not wish to belabor a point that is already so obvious; that urgent attention needs to be given to increased grant-in-aid. But perhaps it is time for the Board of Trustees to once again confront these issues with a renewed sense of vision for what could be achieved. I would suggest six long-term goals be considered: (1) that loans and grant-in-aid funds be available for all qualified, full-time students in sufficient amount to cover total costs of attending Fuller (2) that loans do not exceed for any student a certain amount per year (3) that a limit be reestablished on the number of hours per week that any student needs to work (4) that priority be given to student aid over further building and property expansion (5) that grant-in-aid as a percentage of tuition be increased by small increments each year until it reaches a new goal of so many percent (6) that this to be accomplished without increasing the projected annual tuition increases and without reducing the designated current gifts for student aid. This increase in grant-in-aid could be permanently funded by an endowment designated for that purpose. In the meantime, it seems that there is nothing new under the sun. Student economic life goes on much the same as it did ten years ago. Or is it moving towards a dangerous breaking-point of frustration? Warm regards in Christ, Rob Gallagher

MONTHLY SWM HOME FELLOWSHIP

This year we are reviving the SWM Monthly Home Fellowship meeting which has served as a point of connection and support for students in the past. The fellowship will meet on the second Sunday of every month at the home of Rena Persons (a SWM student). (Thank you, Rena!), 666 N. Hill Av. Apt. #7. That’s on the corner of Hill and Orange Grove (See map on the SWM notice board). The format is to be a time of worship, a couple of testimonies, and a time of prayer (for individuals, families, home countries, etc.), and fellowship. The meeting will run from 7:00-9:00 pm. The next meeting is Sunday November 13th.

SPORTS CHANGE

There will be a new intramurals schedule as of November 5. Make sure to check the sports board to see when you play. There is still room for more players if anyone is interested. (Questions? Leave a message for Jay at x5452).

ATTENTION ALL SWM STUDENTS

Have you marked your calendars yet? Have you turned in your “response form”? Thursday, Dec. 1 is the SWM Christmas Banquet. Don’t miss out!! If you didn’t receive an invitation in your box, pick one up at the SWM office. (Questions? Call Joy or Andrew at x5453).

Tuesdays at Ten
Tuesdays at Ten has become a great opportunity to gather for prayer training and experience. Every Tuesday from 10 - 10:40 a.m., during the chapel hour, in Payton 101B there is a brief sharing on various aspects of prayer and then the rest of the time is spent in prayer. Doug Gregg and Cathy Schaller, among others, facilitate this opportunity to grow in intimacy with God.

Prayer Groups
OCC is collecting a list of groups which meet regularly to pray. If you meet with such a group, please contact us at 584-5322 with particulars about time, location and prayer focus so that we can inform others. If you are looking for a prayer group to join, please come by our office for information about the various groups already formed.

Letters to the Editor
Dear Editor,
I was pleased to read about the wonderful ministry of Kathleen Hart and the SUPPORT group. However, the article also reminded me of a concern that I would like to call to the community’s attention.

The problem is the common reference to “Fuller students and wives.” It always sounds as if there are only male students at Fuller. Though I fully realize that this usage has understandable, historical roots, and that no one is using it with bad intentions, it’s the one thing that has made me feel slightly out of place as a female student at Fuller.

Even more confusing is the label “student wife.” You’d think since I am a full-time student and a full-time wife I would surely be in this category, wouldn’t you? But no!

At this point I think it would be very helpful to become more accurate in our language. “Fuller students and their spouses” would be fine, as long as we remember and make clear that not everyone has a spouse! And I bet that some recognition and support for all the men in our community, like my husband who followed me across the country so that I could get a 6-year degree, would be appreciated too.

IT COULD HAVE BEEN ME

By Sarika Kivela

During these past few weeks, I have been shocked and moved as I have watched reports on the television news of such accidents as the plane crash in Pennsylvania and the ferry accident in the Baltic Sea. At the same time, I have reflected on why it is that certain catastrophic situations get more of my attention than others.

I remember one of the news anchor persons saying after the US AIR crash, "It could have been anyone." As she said this, I realized how limited I am in sympathizing or empathizing with victims of various disasters. The closer the disaster hits home, the more talk there is about the event and the more prayers are offered for the victims. When I say "home," I do not only mean physical proximity, but also emotional or mental proximity. Almost all of us have been in a plane at one time or another, and most of us have been aboard a ferry or a boat. We can imagine, 'coexperience' in our minds, what these accidents must have felt like for the victims. We can imagine ourselves in their shoes. We are then a little wary of getting into a plane (especially if it's US AIR!) and we might think twice about that cruise in the Bahamas. These are normal reactions. Yet I have a conviction that I should not limit myself to these "normal" reactions. I need to go beyond my own small hemisphere of thinking and feeling.

I have realized how selfish it is of me to react so strongly only to accidents that I can relate to. When was the last time I offered up a deeply felt prayer for the people of Rwanda? Or for the Haitians who are a little closer to home? I cannot imagine what hell these people have been through, and continue to go through. What of those children born because of rape in Serbia and Bosnia, and now rejected for that over which they had no control? What of those whose entire families have been decimated in Rwanda?

Each and every one of these people was created in God's image, just like me. Should that not be enough of a physical, emotional and mental point of contact with these people? They deserve my prayers.

As I prayed for God's forgiveness, God placed another image on my heart: "When was the last time you prayed for the rapist or the people who are still killing and mutilating the people in the pictures you are too horrified to even look at? Have you not realized that I created them as well?" In shame, I dropped my head and answered, "Since ....I cannot remember." I realized then, as tears filled my eyes, that I was too disgusted by the actions of these people, too angry, to be able to pray for the victimizers of the innocents in this world. Maybe there would be fewer victims if I were to start praying fervently for the victimizers.

I do not know why I am here at Fuller Seminary rather than in Bosnia, Serbia, Rwanda, Haiti, or some other place of pain and disaster. It is only by the grace of God that I am writing this in the safe comfort of Fuller Housing instead of giving birth to a baby. I do not want because of rape, or being so eaten up by hatred, anger and evil that I could actually kill or mutilate another human being. Yet it does not make me one ounce more precious in the eyes of our Creator.

God cries over, grieves for, and loves each and every one of us. I am here training to be his feet, hands and voice. His tears should be mine. His grief should grip my heart. His love should bring me to my knees. ☠

TRIBAL POLITICS IN THE LOCAL CHURCH
Have you wondered if being a pastor is more like directing a three ring circus, or being a tribal chief? The Office of Field Education is sponsoring a Ministry Enrichment Seminar, with Rev. Dr. Greg Roth, which will focus on understanding tribal politics in the local church and how to reorganize to avoid some of the pitfalls. Dr. Roth will present personnel review policies which might defuse problems between the elder-board and staff. He will also describe how to communicate vision and initiate programs without getting destroyed in the process! This seminar will be offered on Monday, Nov. 14, 3:00-5:00 pm in the Psych. Bldg.-room 126. All students are welcome to attend. If you would like more information, please contact the Office of Field Education, 818-584-5377.

THE BOOKSTORE
Have you bought the books you need? If not, now is the time! The bookstore will start clearing the shelves of fall-quarter books on Monday, November 7 (week 7 of this quarter). Many titles will be returned immediately to publishers, so please, buy what you need early.

INSTRUMENTALISTS WANTED
The Fuller Chapel Choir is preparing for the presentation of The Messiah as part of their Christmas concert on Friday evening, November 18. Dr. Harms, Music Director, is seeking instrumentalists who would like to play in the orchestra for the performance. Please contact Jana Boyd at 796-8842 if you would like to participate.

EDITORS WANTED
Do you possess strong writing/editing skills? Are you willing to use those skills to help other Fuller students? Becoming a member of Fuller's Editing Referral Service affords you a flexible, part-time work opportunity. This service links students who need editorial assistance with reliable editors. (Fuller spouses welcome!) Call Mamie at 818-568-1130.

SUPPORT
All student wives are invited to the SUPPORT Bible study and fellowship meetings held every Wednesday from 9:00-11:30 am at the First Congregational Church (Los Robles/Walnut) in the Youth Lounge, 2nd floor. Kathleen Hart, Chaplain to Student Wives, teaches and leads this group. Childcare provided. Contact: Karen Thayer 818-793-8826.

ORIENTATION COORDINATOR
The Office of Student Services is receiving applications and resumes for the job of Assistant Director of Student Services. This position is responsible for coordinating the New Student Orientations during the 94/95 school year. Projected hire date is November 7, 1994. For more information please call Deborah Payne at 818-584-5435.

FALL CHORAL FESTIVAL
The 45-member Fuller Chapel Choir and the 40-member Rim Festival Chorus of Lake Arrowhead will combine with full orchestra accompaniment to present the Christmas portion of Handel's Messiah and other selected seasonal pieces in a sacred concert on Friday, November 18, 7:30 p.m. in the sanctuary of the First Congregational Church. We welcome the Fuller family and the larger Pasadena community to this gala event. Tickets are $7 for general admission or $5 for students with ID. We encourage you to bring friends and family to this outstanding celebration, and to spread the invitation through your relationships in area churches.

C.P.E. INFORMATIONAL MEETING
On Monday, November 21, 11 am-1 pm in the Geneva Room, the Office of Field Education will sponsor an informational meeting and lunch for all students interested in exploring opportunities for doing Clinical Pastoral Education. A group of supervisors representing CPE Programs from the Southern Pacific Region will provide information about CPE programs in general and about their respective programs in particular. Reservations are required and can be made by contacting the Fuller Ed. office 818-584-5377.

GENDER SURVEY
We appreciate your responses to the gender survey forms that were placed in student boxes during the third week of the quarter. Already we are learning much about students' attitudes and interests in the topics. Responses range from non concern, to irritation that the topic is being pursed, to gratitude for our asking.

The deadline was only for the drawing. SURVEYS MAY BE RETURNED THROUGHOUT THE QUARTER. If you have your copy, please take a few minutes to fill it out. If you need an additional copy please call 584-5433 and leave your box # so that we can send you another copy.

We know that the survey is lengthy and it may appear somewhat repetitive. However, we do not want to guess your ideas. We want you to have the freedom to tell.

LOST AND FOUND
If you have lost or found any items please see Betty Berg at the Switchboard. She may be able to help.

RETREAT FOR FULLER WOMEN
It's too early to start planning for the 1995 Women's Retreat which will be held at St. Peter's By-the-Sea, January 27-28. The cost will be $15. Look for more information coming in December.

PC (USA)
On November 7, Rev. Dave Worth will be with us. Dave is a Fuller alum pastoring Malibu Presbyterian Church. He will be sharing about life after seminary and tough parish assignments. See you at Travis!

STUDENT HEALTH INSURANCE
Registration is right around the corner. A REMINDER to all students: Health insurance enrollment or waiver forms for the Winter Quarter are required to be filled out by every student, whether you are Blue Cross, SHI or waiving insurance.

If you are planning to use self-registration packet forms and register by mail, you must still fill out these forms. Registration dates: Nov. 15-18. Insurance Deadline: January 6. NO EXCEPTIONS.
