Welcome to Fuller! This is the SEMI, a campus paper published weekly during the Fall, Winter, and Spring quarters. We are your source for deadlines, scholarship information, event announcements, and fascinating articles about life at Fuller! Take some time to acquaint yourself with our "FYI" section, on pages 6 and 7 of this issue. We've also solicited advice from our returning students, to help you adjust to your life in Pasadena and at Fuller Seminary. (These are individual opinions from a variety of people.) Enjoy!

What's to do in Pasadena?

What place around Pasadena is an absolute "must-see/do"?

- Huntington Gardens/tea at Huntington Gardens
- Old Town
- Rose Bowl [walk/rollerblade/bike ride]
- Hikes in the mountains [Mt. Wilson, Sturdevant Falls hike in Arcadia]
- Descanso Gardens (La Cañada)
- Drive through San Rafael/Linda Vista areas with a stop at the Art Center College of Design to see the view
- The beach
- Magic Mountain
- City Hall and its courtyard
- The public library (even the Post Office here is beautiful!)
- Happy hour at various restaurants (good cheap food!)
- Pasadena Jazz Festival (spring)
- Pasadena Chili Cookoff (spring)
- Used bookstores on Colorado
- Pasadena Civic Auditorium
- Griffith Observatory
- 3rd Street Promenade (Santa Monica)
- AMC movie theater (Old Pasadena) has 'twilight' matinees for $3.75 for movies starting between 4:00 and 5:30 p.m.. They also have student discounts! If you see movies often, get a 'Movie-Watcher' card here.
- Great getaway: just drive up Highway 2! There are also nice semi-remote dirt trails for running or walks at Lower Arroyo Parkway. A safe place for women to run is the loop around the Rose Bowl (3.1 miles).
- The car wash on Del Mar just past Fair Oaks has the best selection of greeting cards anywhere. (Vromans on Colorado probably has the largest!)

Things to do your first week in Pasadena:

- Buy a Thomas Guide.
- If you are an international student, get a Social Security number ASAP!
- Join AAA Southern Cal. Auto Club; they have free maps and their own DMV agent.
- Look for a bank that doesn't charge you any fees. (Sanwa Bank has a special for Fuller students; they often have a table at the Resource Faire during registration.)
- Remember that, if you are establishing legal residency in California, you need to register your car with the DMV within your first few days here. Make sure you get an appointment, or go to the Auto Club or to the DMV in Glendale (or any other town except Pasadena, where the lines are impossibly long...).
- Start scheduling time with people you meet, so you start making friends before too much work hits.
- Join a health club (See the All Seminary Council during registration, or talk to returning students about which options they choose).
- Install a car alarm.

What should a student keep in perspective while in seminary?

† God has not gone away.
† "In all your ways acknowledge Him, and He will direct your path."
† Grades mean nothing to God.
† That you’re here to make your faith more deep and more broad—not to reinforce shallow truths we tend to adhere to blindly.
† Grades are not the measure of the individual.
† We have the opportunity to minister to one another along the academic journey.
† Ultimately, the goal is to minister God’s love and grace in Jesus Christ, not to pass on knowledge.
† Friends and family matter; your relationships here may mean as much as the coursework—and more—in the long run.
† That professors can actually become friends.
† Balance your studies with spiritual growth, community life, and FUN!
† Spend time with friends and family.
† The need for ‘wasting time with God’ while in seminary!
† Pray, pray, pray—get in a small group.
† Do not forget the Lord Jesus amidst your studies.
† Community doesn’t just happen—be purposeful! Get involved in a church with small groups, too. And don’t forget to have fun!
† Pray a lot. Lean hard on God and let him show you his power and love in a new way as you trade your weakness at Fuller for his strength!
† Be generous with smiles. They cost you nothing, and a genuine smile can change someone’s entire day. It is a small way to share Christ’s joy in the community.
† Enjoy the diversity of opinions at Fuller.
† Don’t expect mentoring relationships with all professors.
† Peet’s Coffee on Lake Avenue beats both Starbucks and Higher Grounds. Make sure your apartment has air conditioning. Don’t be afraid to seek new friends and ask questions.
† Remember your reason for being here—why and for whom? Live accordingly.
† God is much bigger than all of our conceptions of Him combined!
† Honor God and behave accordingly.
† Remember that God is more concerned about how you treat people than about what grades you get.

Write for the SEMI!

This promises to be an exciting year, with the upcoming Jubilee celebration and various 50th-anniversary events throughout the year. If you’re interested in writing an article for the SEMI on a topic of interest to you, please contact editor Laura Simmons at (626)584-5430. In addition, we are soliciting paragraph-length submissions on themes related to Fuller’s mission:

- interdenominational?
- multicultural?
- international?
- evangelical?

Did any of these factors draw you to Fuller? Have you take advantage of them while you’re here? Send us a paragraph about your background and your hopes while at Fuller, so we can compile a variety of perspectives on the school’s mission.

If you submit an article, we’d prefer to have it on diskette ("text-only" format) and on paper. We promise to edit it for style, but we will endeavor not to change your content. Articles are published on a space-available basis, with time-restricted articles given priority. Send articles via campus mail to the SEMI, Box OSS, or drop by our office on the second floor of Kreyssler Hall upstairs from the Catalyst.

What is the single most important thing to know about Fuller?

► People love God and Jesus here.
► It is a feast—partake! (But not too fast)
► Get to know the prayer garden!
► Fuller Seminary is an experience that can change your life!
► Get connected with people, especially internationals.
► Charles Fuller was a godly man who wanted the best for his school.
► Go to class—you paid $35 for every day!
► That despite intense academic challenges, most people do survive, and yes, it does feel easier and you will have friends after your first quarter.
► It’s fast-paced.
► Don’t be afraid to ask for help.
► “Community” is not a scheduled event; it is a choice we make to live together.
► Professors are not always as available as some students want them to be (many have outside ministry commitments, clients, professional affiliations, etc.).
► Fuller can be a competitive place.
► That expectations and definitions of “community” vary widely, therefore so do experiences of it.
► If you reach out to people they will reach out to you!
► Build your own community.
► Hold on to Christ.
► Learn how to find out more—who to ask about various types of questions...what is available here.
► You have to work hard to maintain friendships, since you may not have the same classmates from quarter to quarter.
► It’s an outstanding graduate school of theology!

If you could re-live your first quarter at Fuller, what would you do differently?

► Be more involved in Welcome Week orientation activities.
► Join Allelous immediately. [Editor’s note: Allelous is a cohousing community; see Katie Price Foster in Residential Community for more information or to ask about openings]
► I’d think more carefully about how many classes I could handle per quarter, and which ones would really serve my goals.
► I wouldn’t take the 12-unit Greek intensive first quarter.
► Spend more time getting to know other students/building relationships.
► Go to Will Rogers Beach more.
► Start on my reading and papers earlier (but I say that every quarter!)
► Do intramural sports.
► Nothing—I’d still take Anthropology and Biblical Foundations for Mission, and attend chapels, go to the guest-speaking events & join a committee/club.
► Nothing!
► I would have moved close to campus since I didn’t have a car; I would have explored downtown Pasadena more, especially good coffee spots and bookstores.
► Study full-time, rather than dissipating energy by working part-time.
► Relax more and not compare myself with others.
► Join a Barnabas group.
► See what OCC (Office of Christian Community) was all about.
► Not stress on my first mid-terms so badly.
► Work harder to build/establish a group of friends.
► Ask professors more questions about exams.
► Be more disciplined about study.

What do you wish someone had told you when you first came to Fuller?

► Meet Roberta Hestenes (editor’s note: she is a faculty member emeritus and will be speaking during Fuller’s “Jubilee” celebration in October).
► Concentrate on classes & professors that excite you and that you’re ‘into.’
► How many historical/cultural/culinary spots were so nearby.
► “Try not to take out a student loan; if you can’t afford Fuller, then don’t be here. It’s not that crucial.”
► “You don’t really need to register your car if it has out-of-state plates & registration.” (Note: According to the DMV, this is true only if you are a student and do not plan on establishing residency in California.)
► Fuller is not a community where everyone is on the same page.
► An M.Div. usually takes longer than three years.
► Be prepared, always, to pay for parking [in Southern California]—have quarters available.
► Find a good church.
► Think about not taking 2 hard classes together your first quarter.
► That when the Refectory does special meals, that’s all they do that day.
► Be willing to sacrifice other things to have your Quiet Time; life gets busy and pressured here if you don’t watch out!
► There are often not enough parking spaces (that’s hard for me as a commuter student).
► That it is not realistic to expect to finish in three years; it is also not realistic to try to take 16 units every quarter.
Other General Advice

☐ Take classes that will benefit the ministry God has called you to, not just because they fit into your schedule.

☐ AMEN to that! When I took Foundations for Ministry in 1993, the professor gave a really helpful assignment for first-year students. Take some time to try it out this week, before classes distract you: List your spiritual, vocational, personal, and professional goals (based on your call, gifts, and other factors). Go through the requirements for your particular program and look at what other classes you’ll have room for. Then plan out which courses you’ll be taking throughout your program, and measure every course against your goals: how will this course fulfill any combination of them? If this is not readily apparent for a course, either rethink taking it or go into it (if it is a required course) thinking ahead of time about how you can use the course, the reading material, and the assignments to help facilitate your goals and calling. (If you are a SWM student, some of this may happen in your Missiological Integration Seminar.)

☐ Be on time for classes; too many stragglers are distracting. Always throw trash in containers provided.

☐ Reach out to others—don’t wait for people to reach out to you.

☐ Plan to participate in Fuller’s 50th-anniversary activities and especially the October 14–18 Jubilee events. It will be a very memorable year, and if you don’t participate you’ll wish later that you had (Dr. Mouw’s inauguration was my first year and I still remember it vividly!).

☐ Take a strict sabbath—one day a week with no schoolwork and no work for money.

☐ Get into a study group as soon as possible.

☐ Pray at all times! Learn to manage your time.

☐ Make relationships with two to six friends a priority—invest the time in building relationships.

☐ Check out opportunities for low-cost individual and family therapy at Fuller Psychological and Family Services (FPFS).

☐ If you eat at the Catalyst or Refectory often (or even semi-often) buy the coupon booklet and save $5.

☐ Keep your goals and vision central while you’re here, so you don’t lose sight of them.

☐ Read your SEMI! It contains lots of great information and keeps you informed about what’s going on on campus. (Please note: this remark was not solicited by SEMI staff; it was given voluntarily...)

☐ Don’t be afraid to come to events alone. There will always be lots of people in the same boat. Or ask someone you think may be too shy to go alone.

☐ In the midst of a hectic day on campus, even a quick stop in the prayer garden is a calming reminder of why we’re all here and a good way to center oneself.

☐ Be careful about leaving things in your car when parked in Fuller lots. Sad to say, there have been break-ins.

☐ Go to chapel! Whether it’s denominational chapel on Mondays, ‘Making Space for God’ on Tuesdays, All Seminary Chapel on Wednesdays and Thursdays, find your niche(s) and go!

☐ Women, please don’t be shy about using the night escort service if you have to walk to your car after dark.
